Dear Eleanor Pierce:

I am writing in response to your ad for a music reporter on the Journalism Jobs site. For more I was the popular music writer for the largest weekly paper in Philadelphia, The Welcomat, eventually becoming Music Editor and Associate Editor. (Today the Welcomat is known as Philadelphia Weekly). I wrote a regular column on pop music and also contributed previews and concert, album and book reviews as well. This included both national acts and the local scene and all genres of popular music.

In addition I covered the local Philadelphia music scene for two regional publications, a weekly, East Coast Rocker (AKA the Aquarian) and a Delaware-based publication, Big Shout magazine. East Coast Rocker also had a Philadelphia supplement for about a year of which I was the prime contributor, usually featuring an interview of either a local musician or someone else in the music industry, club owners, disc jockeys, etc.

More recently I was a regular contributor to Gadfly magazine, have been published in England, Italy and Germany and have contributed to several music-based web sites as well including the site for the group The Band, and the official Bob Dylan site, Bobdylan.com.

For print and radio, I have interviewed several musicians including James Brown, Muddy Waters, Lucinda Williams, John Prine, George Jones, Dr. John and Fats Domino to name a few.

Enclosed are clips, a resume and a list of references. I would be happy to relocate to Oregon.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Peter S. Brown.
